

JFS Changes Lives at Easton Job Fair

On Wednesday, May 5, Jewish Family Services partnered with the Easton Community Foundation and invited all of central Ohio to take part in the Easton Job Fair. The Hilton at Easton hosted the event and welcomed the entire community. More than 1500 job seekers attended the job fair, with almost 60 companies on hand representing various industries. Positions available spanned the entire spectrum from entry level to highly professional job opportunities with many positions boasting high salaries. Many of the companies had potential employees fill out applications, and provided on-site interviewing.

Franklin County Commissioner Paula Brooks and June Gutterman, CEO of Jewish Family Services, opened the job fair and addressed the businesses as well as the job seekers. Rated by the business participants, the job fair received a 4.7 out of a possible 5.0, which is an outstanding achievement for any job fair.

Jewish Family Services has another upcoming job fair in July. For more information, go to www.jfscolumbus.org, or email Lynn Aspey at laspey@jfscolumbus.org. JFS Changes Lives
